The wife of Prof. Swing, of Chicago, died at Oxford, Ohio, on Saturday afternoon, of consumption.

The President of the North Chicago Rolling Mills—O. W. Potter—says the corporation keeps 4,000 men at work, and that business was never more prosperous than now.

The Democratic party in Ohio is sorely afflicted with the blues. It lacks organization, wants funds and has no confidence. All this gives the Congressional Committee much grief.

Mr. Justice Field, of California, is happy in the thought that on the authority of so eminent a statesman as Mr. Tilden, he stands next to the great Cipher Reformer as the best Democratic candidate in 1880.

"Brick" Pomeroy wants farmers and mechanics to sell their cows and invest the proceeds in buying his Democrat to circulate among the people—for the good of the cause only. There don't seem to be very much cheek about "Brick."

Mr. J. B. Bennett, of Watertown, a member of the State Senate, has made an assignment in favor of his creditors. He was engaged in the manufacture of threshing machines. His liabilities are estimated at $50,000 and his assets at $60,000.

The Rev. W. H. H. Murray, better known as "Adirondack" Murray, is judged a bankrupt, and his property has been attached by his creditors. He was a fancy farmer—visionary in his ideas, and though his lectures and his books paid well, the income was not sufficient to pay the expense of his farm.

It is "Uncle" Daniel Wells' funds the Democrats are after, and not the man. They know he can not be elected, but then they would get a nibble at his purse and that would afford the Democratic managers some relief at a time when they are bankrupt and without hope. They are pleading poverty with a good deal of earnestness this campaign.

And still the authorities in Memphis hesitate about declaring the yellow fever an epidemic because a certain percentage of deaths is not reached. We presume it won't make much difference with the unfortunate ones at Memphis whether or not an order from the Board of Health makes it epidemic or sporadic—they are dying all the same, and the disease is spreading.

The "Investigating" Committees under the command of a Democratic Congress have more right royal times than any similar committees appointed by Congress They visit watering-places, ride in palace coaches, are wined and dined at the expense of the Government, and have all the fun that can be had by a lavish expenditure of money. This is the reform which the Democrats have been working for so long.

The wife of ex-Governor Dewey was sent to the State Insane Asylum on Saturday. This is a sad case. She is the daughter of the late Judge Dunn, was highly accomplished. For years she was surrounded by all the comforts that money could purchase. The mismanagement of financial affairs by which her husband hurled the family from comfortable circumstances to bankruptcy, and this brought on mental trouble and finally resulted in dethroning her reason altogether. The sad fate of this once beautiful and accomplished lady will create the profoundest sorrow in the hearts of many friends.

Arthur Sullivan, the composer of "Pinafore," is thirty-five years old, and has made himself rich solely by his musical compositions. His songs have been sold by the millions, and the publication of "Pinafore" in America has enriched its publishers, so great has been the demand for the work. He is now the most prominent composer living. He has been doctored by the Cambridge University, and is an intimate friend of all the members of the royal family. Pinafore, which is not a great work but an interesting one, and immensely popular, gave him a fame as broad as the two continents.

TROUBLE IN THE FISH COMMISSION.

It has been known for some time that things have gone crosswise at the meetings of the Wisconsin Fish Commission. The Commission is a useful institution and can be the means of doing much good, but unless something can be done to insure a spirit of harmony in the Commission, the sooner it is abolished the better. There are members in the Commission who are interested in the work for which the Commission was organized, and deeply desire that it shall be of some service to the people, but the President of the Commission—William Welch, of Madison, is a general "kicker," and one who spreads discord among the members, instead of using his influence to promote harmony. The meeting of the Commission which recently took place in Milwaukee has drawn out another controversy in regard to the feeling in the Commission. The Milwaukee papers gave what was generally presumed to be a truthful report of the proceedings of the meeting, to which Welch took exceptions, and his interview published in the State Journal of Saturday shows that he is disposed to make trouble. He takes it upon himself to say that he has been fully indorsed in all his positions, a statement which the Commission will not sustain him in making. Welch further charges Dr. Hoy, of Racine, who recently withdrew from the Commission, with incompetency and double dealing, whereas Dr. Hoy, is one of the ablest scientific men in the State, and a gentleman who can not be slandered by anything such a man as Welch can say. He took much interest in the work of the Fish Commission and desired to promote its usefulness, but he was compelled to resign on account of the mischief which Welch was constantly making. Mr. Dousman, another worthy man, was legislated off the Commission through the influence of this man Welch, and now he is trying to have Mr. Welsher removed from the Commission. It would be a blessing to the Fish Commission and a benefit to the science of pisciculture, in this State, if Welch would resign and a gentleman put in his place.

Welch's interview as published in the Journal, is full of misstatements, and in this respect does the other members of the Commission an injustice.

BEWARE OF FALSE PROPHETS.

From the time the resumption law was enacted in 1875 till it went into effect in 1879, the Democratic party and the Greenbackers did not cease their cries against it. To them it was a bugbear and something to be dreaded. Democratic Congressional Conventions denounced it and implored the people to rise up against it. Democratic State Conventions declared that the resumption act would oppress the people, eat up their substance, and spread general disaster. The National Democratic Convention gave notice to the world that the Republican plan of resumption was a fraud; that instead of nearing resumption the Republican policy was drifting the country farther from it than ever. It declared that an attempt to resume would make the rich richer and the poor poorer, and that labor would be crushed and starved. Democratic speakers and Democratic editors took it upon themselves to solemnly warn the people not to support the Republican plan of resumption.

Judge Doolittle, that "earnest man," staked his honor in a statement made in Janesville in October 1878, that should the resumption act be enforced in January, 1879, within three weeks it would cause business stagnation throughout the whole country, that gold would rapidly advance in price, and that the people would become bankrupt. But hardly had the words fallen from the lips of this earnest man than the premium on gold entirely disappeared, resumption went into effect, and business began to revive.

Other Democrats told us that the Republican financial policy would close the mills and furnaces of the country and rob the laborer of his wages. But hardly had the new year dawned and the resumption act had gone into effect, than the mills increased their rattle, the furnaces blazed brighter than ever, and wages became more firm and employment more abundant.

There were other Democrats who said they would give $50,000 for the chance to head the line which would march up to the Treasury doors on resumption day. But resumption took place without making a ripple on the financial sea, and during the first four months of the year only $4,125,512 in notes were handed in for payment, while on the other hand $4,194,185 in coin was deposited and notes received in return for them!

The people were told that if resumption were enforced, it would be a day of bliss for the money lender, but one of sorrow for the workingman. But since the resumption went into force, prices have become more firm, capital has found safe investment, more men and women have found employment than at any time since the panic began, and more mills have been put in operation, more mines opened, more buildings erected than for the previous five years.

These are some of the results of the Republican financial policy, and yet with these remarkable facts staring the Democratic party in the face, the Democrats of Wisconsin declare that policy to be failure; and in Ohio General Ewing tells the people that good times, high prices, abundance of money, and easy work and high wages cannot be secured unless he is elected Governor. But a party which has accomplished so much which has carried the country so grandly over financial breakers, and which has given the country a sounder currency and a safer financial system, than ever before known in its history, will still have the confidence and support of the people.

Ostriches for the Army.

From the New York Times.

It is reported that a distinguished colonel in the United States cavalry has determined to mount a part of his command on ostriches instead of horses, and old army officers may naturally be supposed to take such an interest in the proposed innovation that they will eagerly read whatever may be written in favor of the object or against it. It will be urged on the one hand that the ostrich is a swift and much-enduring animal, which can subsist on very little food and water, and is a sort of two-legged camel, which the genius of Napoleon would undoubtedly have utilized in Egyptian campaign in lieu of dromedaries, had it but existed in sufficient numbers and been readily taken alive. Forty centuries, looking down from the summits of the pyramids upon an ostrich brigade, would, indeed, hardly have been able to refrain from a smile. In general ease of management, this interesting bird should be a great improvement on the horse, since neither saddle nor bridle would be required by the rider, who could sit at ease astride the arch of its neck and govern the head with his naked hands. In breeding, it needs but a hole in the sand for its mare's nest, and from a single brood-ostrich fifty or sixty foals will be forthcoming every year. It would make a singularly imposing spectacle on parade, and the fine plumage of its wings and tail streaming in the breeze behind would obviate the necessity of adorning its rider in glittering and brilliant harness, and would therefore be a great saving to the Government, even if the whole army should be reduced to 10,000 men, with or without wooden legs. All these facts may be urged in favor of the substitution of ostriches for horses in the cavalry arm of the service, but nevertheless there are many objections which should receive stern consideration before Colonel Hatch's idea be adopted.

For though indeed the ostrich is a swift bird, its swiftness is almost invariably in a sense contrary to the impulses of a true and brave soldier. Its neck is by no means clothed with thunder, and if it sniffs the battle from afar, it is only that it may escape with headlong speed. Seated on its back a troop of soldiers would get along passably well over a smooth road, well furnished with the bird's favorite fodder of stones, which has made the stomach of an ostrich proverbial; but when the blast of war blew in his ears, the whole command would at once be seen bounding in retreat over the plains. And he indeed would be a matchless rider who could then retain his seat, as his two-footed steed scurried along at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, and covered fourteen or fifteen feet every stride. In such circumstances, a troop of cavalry would be as harmless to the enemy as a brigade of John Gilpins, and not nearly so entertaining to spectators.

On the whole, therefore, it seems undesirable that our cavalry should be mounted on ostriches, and it is to be hoped that a deaf ear will be turned to the advocates of so alarming a proposition as that which now comes from brave, though short sighted commanders in New Mexico.

An Owl Four Feet Eight Inches from Tip to Tip.

From the Farmington (Mo) Register.

About six weeks since Nathan Vail, living near Middlebrook, set a steel trap for some "varmint" that had been making away with his chickens in the farm yard. The next morning the trap was gone, with its chain and block of wood—in all weighing, perhaps, about eight pounds. From that time the chickens lived in peace, until last Saturday. A commotion was observed among the poultry in a meadow adjoining Mr. Vail's residence, and he took his gun and went out to ascertain the cause. A big owl had settled down in the meadow, and Mr. Vail tried to shoot him, but his gun missed fire. He then noticed that the intruder was trying to get away, but for some cause could not "make a raise." A nearer approach showed that a trap and chain was attached to one of Mr. Owl's legs. A stroke with a club settled him, and upon examination it was found that the trap was the same that had disappeared six weeks before. His bowlship measured four feet eight inches from tip to tip.

It is supposed to be incendiary.

MEMPHIS.

Review of the Colored Troops—Strict Local Quarantines—Two Deaths from Fever.

Special to the Gazette.

MEMPHIS Aug. 4—Noon, five cases and two deaths to-day. Of the 400 at Camp Marks two cases are reported there.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., August 3—The only incident of the day was the parade and review of the colored military companies, which was witnessed on the bluffs, where the two companies are in camp. Later in the afternoon religious services were held by the Rev. J. H. Ridly, a colored divine, in which both companies with a large concourse of colored people took part.

Two deaths have occurred since last night, to wit: Fritz Wehrum, aged 15, 79 Clay street, and Maggie Downey, aged 17, 76 Jones avenue.

The Memphis and Charleston railroad would not to-day take ten tents to Lagrange Tennessee, for fear the train would be stopped if it was known that freight was being taken out of Memphis. The local quarantines of the small towns along the railway are very severe and strict.

The Rev William Walsh, a Catholic priest of distinction, who was here during the epidemic last year, returned to Memphis to-day. He was crossing the ocean when the fever made its appearance and came from New York as fast as steam and rail would take him.

Fathers Fahey and Doyle are reported very ill to-night.

KANSAS.

Sure to Become One of the Great States of the Union.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—During his recent Western trip, General Tyner, First Assistant Postmaster General, passed through Kansas. He reports the tide of emigration into that State as never before equaled in the history of an American State. He thinks Kansas will become one of the great States of the Union, like Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. It is more than twice as large as Ohio, and if as densely populated, could support 7,000,000 of people. As to the negro exodus into Kansas, he says it is but a drop in the bucket, and that an equal number of white men going there would have attracted no attention whatever. He thinks, however, that the westward movement of the blacks has but commenced, and that Kansas will eventually have 500,000 of them, and that they will find plenty to do and make a good living. He reports enormous crops all over the West, and laborers will be in demand white and black.

DROWNED.

LONE ROCK, Aug. 2—While Master Willie Pound and Miss Alice Ketcham, of Richland City, accompanied by Miss Cellyham, of Spring Green, were sailing on the Wisconsin river, this afternoon, their craft capsized. Miss Cellyham clung to Mr. Pound, while he and Miss Ketcham did their best in clinging to the boat, but, it being a small one, they found it very difficult to do so. Help was close at hand. Boards were thrown them, by which Mr. Pound and Miss Cellyham were saved, but Miss Ketcham, while in the act of grappling, sank. Not reappearing as soon as customary, diving for the body commenced, and resulted in bringing her up within thirty minutes after sinking. Every remedy was resorted to, but of no avail. As blood was discovered to be flowing from her mouth just as she sank, it is very probable a blood vessel burst. Miss Ketcham was an only daughter. Her death will be a sad blow to her parents and her invalid father. Mr. Ketcham, during Governor Fairchild's administration, was Assistant State Treasurer, and the time very popular in political circles.

LACROSSE, Aug 3—The drowning of three of a party ended a picnic at La Crosse to night. Six row boat loads were coming home, and when two miles above the city one boat capsized. John Thornson, Mary Hanson and an Italian musician named Frank De Luca were drowned. The accident occurred at 7 o'clock, and the bodies of Thornson and Miss Hanson were recovered at 11 p. m.

JEFF DAVIS.

His Forthcoming Book on the Rebellion.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—A gentleman from Mississippi says that Jefferson Davis will make a mint of money out of his book, which is to be published this fall by the Appletons. The general expectation is that it will have a tremendous sale, and bring the author a handsome income. As to the Senatorial election, it is authoritatively stated that General Barksdale, the strongest candidate except Davis, will withdraw upon the first intimation that Davis wants the place, and that in this event the ex-President of the Confederacy will have the entire vote of the Democrats in both branches of the Legislature.

A BAD FIRE.

GREEN BAY, Aug. 3.—The grist, saw and planing mills of Letter & Appleton, at Black Creek, about twenty-two miles east of this city, with contents, were totally destroyed by fire on yesterday afternoon. Fears were entertained for the safety of the village, and in response to a telegram for assistance, one of the fire steamers from this city was sent by special engine over the Green Bay & Minnesota road. However, the fire was confined to the mill property. The loss is estimated at about $20,000. No insurance. The mills had been shut down four days previous to the fire, and the origin of the latter is unknown. It is understood the firm will rebuild immediately.

Joaquin Miller Again

[New York Letter in Boston Gazette.]

I don't know when I received such a shock as I had the other day. I had just dropped a letter in a lamp-post box, when a man approached me from the other side and said "How d'ye do?" I bowed my head slightly for I had no idea who he was.

"You don't know me?" said he.

"No" I replied; "don't think I ever saw you before."

"Now, look at me hard," said he taking off his hat.

I looked hard and saw a man clad in a cream-color suit, with a note-book and pencil sticking out of the breast pocket. He wore a low cut collar and a loose tie. On his hands were orange colored kids, stitched with black, and his hat was a sort of salmon colored straw. Then my eyes reached his face, and I saw a head so closely cropped that it looked as though it had been sandpapered. The cheeks and chin were clean shaven, but the upper lip was relieved by a long, light mustache.

"Now, don't you know me," he enquired replacing his hat.

"No," I replied quite as mystified as I was at first.

"Have you forgotten Joaquin Miller?"

"What! Impossible! This the poet of the Sierras; the poetic Samson of the Pacific slope? Who was the Delilah that had shorn him of his locks?"

"I wanted a change." replied he.

"And you've got it. Have you written any poetry in this condition?"

"No."

"Then pray don't."

"I have been too ill and too much worried by my domestic affairs for work. I have just returned from Oregon and Mexico. They have been trying to put my little girl on the stage, and I had to go home to get her away from them. This is a sad world. There is nothing in it but trouble. There is my car. Good bye!" and he sprang aboard a green car and waved his salmon colored hat from the rear platform.

If Joaquin Miller had made his first appearance in London and New York thus shaven. I don't believe that he would have had the success that his long hair and flowing beard have won for him. Unshaven, he looked like a poet; now he looks like those men who lounge in front of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, or congregate on street corners.

Oranges and Lemons.

From the New York Herald.

When a young gentleman invests his 2 or 3 cents in an orange, or when a person of more advanced years calls for a "squeeze of lemon" or "just a shaving of lemon peel" in his glass, the thought is far from both their heads that they are contributing their mites to an industry which last year imported into the United States at the port of New York a total money value of those articles of over $2,800,000, on which they paid to the Government a duty of over $560,000. Indeed, many political economists may be surprised to learn from the report of the United States Inspector of Customs that the value of green fruit entered for consumption at this port in the year of 1878 aggregated $3,735,050, of which oranges and lemons amounted to $2,802,966 grapes to $232,000, bananas to nearly, $400,000, and cocoanuts to nearly $200,000. The duty collected on these articles reached $666,000, the cocoanuts alone being free.

The extent of the traffic may be imagined from the fact that the number of oranges imported in cases last year was nearly 170,000,000, and the number of lemons in boxes 218,000,000. It is evident that the business of raising oranges and lemons in the Gulf States may one day become very profitable. The duty of 20 per cent, paid by the importer is not the only protection offered to the home grower. Out of the oranges imported last year more than 60,000,000 perished on the voyage—a loss of 36 per cent., while in lemons the loss by decay reached 20 per cent. These facts ought certainly to encourage the raising of such fruit at home.

A CURIOUS PRESENTIMENT.

The Singular Experience That Befel a St. Louis Man in Europe.

A few years ago there resided in this city, says the St. Louis Republican, of last week, two brothers—both now deceased—whose names were and are "as familiar as household words" in this community. Partners in a large and successful business which had brought them an ample fortune, they were bound together by the closest ties of affection; and their fraternal love was not the least remarkable feature of characters universally respected and admired. At the time of which we speak the elder was in the enjoyment of perfect health, while the younger felt the necessity of the rest and recreation afforded by a trip to Europe. He was fortunate enough to secure the company of a well-known citizen, to whom we are indebted for the following facts. They had traveled leisurely through a portion of the Continent and reached the little village of Chamouni, in Switzerland, where they expected to remain a few days and then continue their journey. Returning to the hotel at night, after an excursion to the ice fields around Mont Blanc, our informant, whom we will call Mr. D——, said to his companion: "Well, E——, let us lay out our plans for to-morrow, so that we can start right after breakfast and do what we have to do comfortably." E——, contrary to his usual custom, manifested no interest in the programme of pleasure, and intimated that he was about ready to go home. D—— expressed his surprise at this sudden change of mind, but told him that a night's sleep was all he needed to revive his spirits and restore the enthusiasm which had so unexpectedly evaporated. The other did not think so, but was willing to retire early and try the experiment. Next morning E——announced his intention of returning to America as soon as possible. Profoundly astonished at this resolve, D—— inquired the reason. "I am," said his friend, "impressed with the idea that my brother is ill, very ill, and I must go to him at once." In vain was he reminded that the last letters received from home justified no such supposition; that the brother was then well, and that there was absolutely no ground for believing his health impaired in the least. E—— admitted the force of the argument, but was not convinced. He declared that something told him his brother was seriously indisposed; that the impression came upon him the day before and had deepened ever since, and that he must and would go home. Finding his purpose unchangeable, D—— of course yielded to it, and within twenty-four hours they were homeward bound. Arriving in New Pork E—— found letters informing him that his brother had been smitten by the disease which finally ended his life. We think a comparison of dates showed that the fatal attack came on the very day E—— had the presentiment in Chamouni, 5,000 miles away.

It is hardly necessary to say that such things are not uncommon. Books treating of this branch of the so-called 'supernatural" are full of cases apparently as well authenticated as the one we have given. Usually, however, the presentiment is conveyed in a dream, or in the wakeful hours of night. In this instance it appears to have come when all the senses were awake and active, and amid scenes extremely unfavorable to the operations of a morbid fancy. Moreover, E—— was a practical, common-sense man of the world, sound in mind and body, and if anything deficient in imaginative power. The presentiment was literally driven into him, and its verification makes the mystery complete. He probably would have been the first to laugh at such an idea in another person, and evidently received it himself under stoutest protest.

A Crazy Woman Cured by Lightning Stroke.

From the Waterbury (Conn.) American.

Last week the house of Jonas Buckingham, in Milford, was struck by lightning and was somewhat demaged. The most remarkable circumstance in connection with it is that Mrs. Buckingham, who has been deranged for several years, had her reason completely restored by the shock, thus showing the benefits of electricity as a remedial agent in such cases. Mr. Buckingham says he would not have cared had his house been burned, so long as his wife's health was restored.

SOME OLD PEOPLE.

Who Shame the Rising Generation by their Exhibition of Strength and Energy.

From the Philadelphia Record.

The tramp of the old lady from Maine to this city, on her way to her children in Chester, shows what pluck can accomplish in spite of the infirmities of old age. From different parts of the State come stories of other old people's achievements, the reading of which is calculated to put the indolent young people of the present day to the blush.

There is the old man fond of performing pedestrian feats. His name is John Steinmetz and his age is 74 years. He is the oldest and most active person in the neighborhood of Beckersville, Bucks county. A short time ago he visited his daughter who lives near Springfield, Chester county. He traveled on foot and returned the same day, making a total distance of eighteen miles. He thinks nothing of walking to Reading and returning the same day.

Then there is the industrious old man—the man who rises with the lark, saws wood before breakfast, and cares nothing for rain or storm. In Robeson township, Berks county, John Robinson, 83 years old raked and bound the cutting of a rye field. His only assistance was a young woman, and the yield made 183 shocks.

Another who has distinguished himself in the field is William Lauck, living near Friedensburg, Berks county. He is a remarkably healthy and active old gentleman. During harvest he went into the field and commenced binding grain, and in less than half a day he bound 200 large sheaves. He is a tailor by trade, and is not used to working in the sun.

A hard working old couple live in Dorrance township, Luzerne county. William McDermott is 82 years of age and his wife is 77. This old couple worked in the harvest field all the past week, the old gentleman cradling and his wife binding up the sheaves. It is doubted if there is another couple of such an age in the country capable of doing this kind of work.

From Pike township, Berks county, comes the story of a pugnacious old lady—Elizabeth Bard, 79 years old. An attempt was recently made to survey a line between the property of Josiah Dingler and Mrs. Bard. As soon as the surveyor drove his stakes Mrs. Bard pulled them out of the ground and threw them over the fence until he was compelled to relinquish the survey. Several criminal prosecutions have arisen out of the disputed line fence between the properties, and Mrs. Bard recently spent several days in jail until she was released on bail.

Henry Maurer and his wife Catharine, of New Berlin, Berks county, have shared each other's joys and sorrows for forty two years, and are now poor and needy. Their life has been one of hard work, with no luxuries. The husband is 70 years old. From early boyhood to decrepit old age he has performed hard labor. All his life he has been working on a farm as a hired hand or employed as a laborer.

An old lady, with pride of ancestry, is Mrs. Mary B. Rimby, who is the oldest resident of South Coventry township, in Chester county. She was 92 years of age on the 1st of May, and she is still sprightly, going about the house and village, and occasionally attending church. She is the daughter of Judge John Ralston, who served in the revolutionary war with distinction—enlisting in the army as Captain and returning home as Colonel. He was afterwards Associate Judge for a long time.

Abraham Darlington, who lives in Thornbury township, Chester county, entered upon his 91st year yesterday. He has lived upon the farm which he now occupies during the entire course of his life. He is the oldest surviving member of the Darlington family.

Camden's old man must not be omitted. The most venerable relic of antiquity in that town is old Father Evans, a colored preacher. On the 24th of last March he celebrated his 102d anniversary by preparing digging the earth up with his spade and putting it into condition to receive the seed. He takes his regular walks of ten or fifteen miles into the country "to call on his friends," as he says, and walks home again when he has completed his round of visit. In the summer time he is able to do light work around the farm, and in the fall can husk as many bushels of corn in a day as many who are more boastful of their youth and strength.

A MISSOURI CAVE.

The Bones of Human Pigmies Reported to Have Been Discovered.

From the St. Louis Republican.

The Alexandria Commercial mentions the existence in Clarke county of some prehistoric relics of a very unusual and interesting character. There are, it says, numerous mounds in the central and western portions of the county which have attracted little attention from archæologists. A few of them have been dug into and pieces of pottery obtained, but no thorough exploration has been made. The mounds are scattered promiscuously and without any apparent order all over the county, except in the bottom region on the Mississippi; none are to be found there. As the county is brought into cultivation the hills are plowed over and over and reduced, and by this process in the course of years they will be made to disappear. A considerable number of stone idols have been dug up and are now in possession of individuals. But the strangest fact stated by the Commercial is the existence of a cave in which the bones of extinct species of animals and human skeletons have been found. It says: "There is a cave on the bluff overlooking Fox river, between Snyder's and McCarty's mills, that is full of quaint shells, bones of animals unknown at the present day, and skeletons of men and women not more than half as large as those who live here at the present time." This cave was known to the settlers as early as 1835, but of late years the entrance of it has been filled up with washings from the bluff, and no one has curiosity enough to reopen and explore it. If it is such a receptacle of bones as is claimed it deserves the attention of investigators. Bone caves have been discovered in England, Ireland and Germany, and their contents, consisting chiefly of the bones of an enormous extinct bear and of inferior animals which were its prey, have yielded much interesting information to scholars; but we believe no such receptacle has been discovered in the Mississippi Valley. It, therefore, such a cave as the Alexandria Commercial describes, containing the bones of extinct species of animals and of human pigmies, has been found in Clarke county, the discovery is most important. Clarke county is the northeast corner of Missouri, bounded on the east and north by the Mississippi and Des Moines rivers and the Iowa line.

Locomotive Longevity.

From the Scientific American.

The iron horse does not last much longer than the one of flesh and bones. The ordinary life of a locomotive is 30 years. Some of the small parts require renewal every six months; the boiler tubes last five years and the crank axles six years; tires, boilers and fire boxes from six to seven years; the side frames, axles and other parts thirty years. An important advantage is that a broken part can be repaired and does not recommend the whole locomotive to the junk shop, while, when a horse breaks a leg, the whole animal is only worth the flesh, fat and bones, which amount to a very small sum in this country, where horse flesh does not find its way to the butcher's shambles.

PROF. HARRIS' RADICAL CURE FOR SPERMATTORHŒA.
—THE—
"SEMINAL PASTILLE"

SHAPE & SIZE OF A SEMINAL PASTILLE

A Valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, an entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions & Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its specific influence on the Seminal Vesicles Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, it is quickly dissolved and soon absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the system, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, Etc. Etc. and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Preparation. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction.——During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble. that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon whom quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. The Remedy is put up in a neat box, enough to last a month, and sent in a plain wrapper by mail sealed for $2. (Two boxes, (sufficient to effect a permanent cure unless in severe cases) $3.——Three boxes lasting three full months, will stop emissions, and restore vigor, in the worst cases. $7.—Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.

Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent Sealed for stamp to any one. Sold ONLY by the

A REMARKABLE MAN.

Wonderful Engineering Achievements of Eads, the Mississippi Jetty Man.

Edmond Hudson in Boston Herald.

One of the remarkable men of his time has just experienced a stroke of fortune such as is not uncommon with him. The tides at the mouth of the Mississippi have done the bidding of Captain Eads and has brought him solvency and success. The great work of creating a 30-foot channel at the mouth of the river has been accomplished, and the amount of money for which Captain Eads agreed to do the work has been found sufficient, so that the backers of Captain Eads and the Government are both satisfied. Eads made his name as the builder of the St. Louis bridge, one of the greatest works of the century. That undertaking, although a perfect triumph of engineering skill, brought financial disaster to the company which supplied the funds. It was too great a work for a private corporation. It is said that Eads, while watching its erection saw so many novel opportunities for the exercise of ingenuity and skill that he took out no less than 200 patents on devices which were suggested to him. The bridge was hardly completed before Eads brought forward his plan for opening the mouth of the Mississippi. From the first he had the strenuous opposition of the engineers of the army. The most eminent engineers were detailed to report on his scheme, and they reported against it. Eads pressed his plan, and a commission was sent by the Government to examine the jetties at the mouth of the Danube. The report was not unfavorable. Eads secured the political influence of the whole Mississippi Valley, and carried the necessary legislation through Congress. An appropriation of four or five millions was required, and Congress appropriated it, to be paid in instalments. Eads went to work and got along slowly at first. He had great obstacles to overcome, and it was found that the amount of money needed to carry on the work exceeded the amount of the instalments.

Two years in succession Captain Eads was obliged to come here and ask favors of Congress and the Executive. The engineers and many others continued to doubt the ultimate success of his idea. The Cincinnati Commercial opposed it constantly and denounced it as a humbug. Unforseen obstacles arose to delay the work. It was found that the water confined between the jetties did not scour the channel out evenly. Large lumps of mud were left, which required artificial means for their removal. Captain Eads was obliged to go to Pittsburg, and spend nearly $200,000 for a dredging vessel of entirely novel design. He began with a channel in the pass, in some places only eight feet deep, and the currents at first scoured it out slowly. The deeper the channel became the more rapidly it deepened. The other day he obtained a depth of thirty feet, which was all that he had ever agreed to secure. His success was complete, and the engineers were nowhere, Eads is a smallish and rather fragile looking man. A peculiar pallor of his skin and a very quiet manner make him seem even smaller than he is. But he has a very thoughtful and determined face. He looks like a man who has the utmost confidence in himself and who knows how to wait. The personal influence he has exercised here by virtue of his connection with the jetties has been enormous. When he wanted favors from Congress and the President took rooms at the Riggs House and became "a society man." With his carriage he drove about town every night, attending all the receptions and entertainments. No man was more frequently seen at the White House in the winter evenings. He understood the arts of society and early ingratiated himself with Mrs. Hayes. He did the agreeable to all members' wives and could give elderly lobbyist lessons in the science of "getting votes." It was he who was mainly instrumental in inducing the President to abandon the idea of vetoing the river and harbor appropriation bill last March. Sherman had talked Mr. Hayes into the idea and the veto message was written and lay in the President's room at the Capital in the last hours of the session. Eads rallied a tremendous pressure from Senators and members and carried his point.

Now that his jetties have won the day, he is turning his attention to a ship railway across the Isthmus of Panama. That is an idea which is less likely to succeed, but it would not be surprising to see Eads raise a few millions of dollars and try it. He will always have some big scheme on hand. Like many other inventors and leading men he does not enrich himself by his ideas. Of course there was no money for him in the St. Louis bridge beyond his salary as engineer, and he will not make much more out of the jetties.

WORLD WONDERS.

Eleven Thousand Years of Winter and an Equally Long Summer.

Mr. G. Hilton Scribner, ex-Secretary of State for New York, has been giving to the Troy Times his views on the momentous geological changes through which the earth has passed, and is still passing. Mr. Scribner finds a ready solution of many of the difficulties which perplex the geologist. The epochs through which the globe has passed are due largely, if not wholly, he believes, to the fact that the earth's axis describes a circle in the northern heavens, and that the effect of this is to cause the earth to pass through long winters and summers of 11,000 years each. "During its winter," says Mr. Scribner, "each hemisphere is submerged under the ocean; its vegetation compressed into coal beds; its whole surface covered with marine deposits and sediment transported and scattered by ocean currents; and thus enriched, it rises again after a long winter of 11,000 years, to be renewed in life, clothed with vegetation and beauty, to become again the theater of activity through a vast summer as long as its season of repose. Sixty-five coal-beds in horizontal layers, one above another, have been opened in the British islands, which makes it probable that at least sixty-five of these long years have passed since vegetation grew upon the earth." This wonderful change in the ocean's level is brought about, Mr. Scribner argues, by a change in the earth's center of gravity, and this again is caused by the vast accumulation of ice around the pole of the hemisphere which is passing through its long winter. "We have supposed this center of gravity of the earth," he says "to be shifted southward, by the causes enumerated, about two miles, or 10,000 feet. This would increase the depth of water in the Southern oceans 10,000 feet, and would decrease the depth of water in the Northern oceans 10,000 feet, in order to keep their surfaces equi-distant from the earth's center of gravity, or upon a water level; but to increase the depth of the ocean in the Southern hemisphere by an additional 10,000 feet would be to submerge nearly all the lands in the Southern hemisphere, and to increase the depth of the ocean by 10,000 feet north of the equator would result in draining off vast continents in the Southern hemisphere. This is the exact condition of things which the earth to-day presents." Mr. Scribner cites various facts which he believes to be confirmatory to these views, and finally sums up as follows: "First, the North pole is toward the sun while the earth passes slowly around the lower portion of its orbit. Second, the South pole is toward the sun while the earth moves more rapidly around the shorter portion of its orbit. Third, this gives to the Northern hemisphere about four days more of warm and four days less of cold weather than the Southern hemisphere receives of each. Fourth, this keeps the ice thinner and with narrower limits at the North pole, and produces vast accumulations of ice about the South pole. Fifth, this changes the center of gravity of the earth to the southward of its center of bulk. Sixth, this causes the oceans to flow from the north, draining off vast continents, to the Southern hemisphere, and there submerging others of equal extent; and lastly, extending the limit of the banana, the vine, of grain and of wood 500 miles farther north than the same varieties are found south of the equator." All of which, if not scientifically accurate, is at least an interesting contribution on a most fascinating subject.

CATARRH

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH is a safe, certain, and permanent cure for Catarrh of every form, and is the most perfect remedy ever devised. It is purely a vegetable distillation, and is applied locally by insufflation, and constitutionally by internal administration. Locally applied, relief is instantaneous. It soothes, heals, and cleanses the nasal passages of every feeling of heaviness, obstruction, dulness, or dizziness. Constitutionally administered it renovates the blood, purifies it of the acid poison with which it is always charged in Catarrh, stimulates the stomach, liver, and kidneys, perfects digestion, makes new blood, and permits the formation of sound, healthy tissue, and finally obtains complete control over the disease. The remarkable curative powers, when all other remedies utterly fail, of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, are attested by thousands who gratefully recommend it to fellow-sufferers. No statement is made regarding it that cannot be substantiated by the most respectable and reliable references. It is a great and good medicine, and worthy all confidence. Each package contains a Treatise on Catarrh and Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for its use in all cases. Price $1.

An Enthusiastic Friend of Sanford's Radical Cure.

McHATTON, GRANT & BOWEN'S FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE AGENCY,
225 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 7, 1877.

A. A. MELLIER, Washington Av., City.—Dear Mellier: I have for some years been troubled with Catarrh, and for the past two years have suffered seriously with it. Noticing your advertisement of SANFORD'S REMEDY (RADICAL CURE), I decided to try it. I have used only two bottles, and as a result I feel so much relieved that I presume on our personal relations and write this to you and ask that you take some measures to get it more prominently before the public, that others may have such relief as I have. I have recommended it to quite a number of my friends, all of whom have expressed to me their high estimate of its value and good effects with them.

I really think it particularly adapted to wants of St. Louis people, and they all ought to know of it, and those who need it should try it. I will risk the assertion that 1000 1 oz. vials (as a sample) to be given away will sell as many bottles.

Try some plan. Let the people have it; they need it. I believe I could sell 5000 bottles myself—of course you could largely increase this number. Why not try it? Yours truly, WM. BOWEN.

LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM

CURED BY

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen,—One year ago I was seized with a severe attack of Rheumatism in my right hip, to which I was subject. I tried the various liniments and rheumatic cures, but without the least benefit, when my son, a druggist, suggested one of your COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS. The effect was almost magical, for, to my grateful surprise, I was almost immediately well again, and was able to work upon my farm as usual, whereas, before the application of the Plaster, I could do nothing, and every step gave me pain. A few weeks since, one year from the first attack, the disease returned, but I am happy to say the second Plaster proved as efficacious as the first, and I am now well. My wife wishes me to add that one Plaster has cured her of a very lame back. We think there is nothing in the world of remedies that can compare with the COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS for Rheumatism and Lame Back, and cheerfully recommend them to the suffering. Yours very respectfully,
ORLAND, ME., June 6, 1876. ROBERT COTTON.

NOT A QUACK NOSTRUM.

Gentlemen,—I hereby certify that for several years past I have used the VOLTAIC PLASTERS in my practice, and have never known them to fail in affording speedy relief in those cases for which they are recommended. They are not a quack nostrum, but a remedial agent of great value. Very truly yours, W. C. COLLINS, M. D.
BUCKSPORT, ME., May 27, 1874.

PRICE 25 CENTS.

Be careful to obtain COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER, a combination of Electric and Voltaic Plates, with a highly Medicated Plaster, as seen in the above cut. Sold by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States and Canadas, and by WEEKS & POTTER, Proprietors, Boston, Mass.

Befitting music was rendered by Mrs. Wingate, Misses Willey, Mr. Wingate, and Mr. Follansbee. Messrs. Hiram Bump, Frank Gray, E. Murdock, J. S. Draper, N. O. Clark and G. C. McLean served as pall-bearers. The remains were taken to Oak Hill cemetery for interment.

SATURDAY NIGHT SCENE.

A Prisoner Who Wouldn't Halt, Gets a Bullet from the Revolver of the City Marshal.

There was a lively scene on the streets Saturday night, caused by Marshal Russell attempting to preserve order. The first of the proceeding occurred in Wulff's saloon on Main street, about 11 o'clock. It was time to close the doors and "douse the glimmer," in accordance with the ordinance, and Wulff proposed to comply with it. There were several in the bar-room at the time, and they seemed loth to leave, though requested to do so. Wulff stepped outside and called Marshal Russell in, and that officer requested the crowd to leave. One of the number, Jack Kelly, wanted some more beer, and on being told that there was none, then wanted some ale, but on being refused continued to lounge around in spite of the urgings of the Marshal. Finally the Marshal took hold of him and was trying to eject him, when James O'Hara came up from behind and commenced thumping the Marshal. With war in front and an attack in the rear that officer had all he wanted to do, and in order to intimidate them he pulled his revolver and fired between Kelley's legs the bullet landing in the wainscoting. That quieted the row and the party dispersed.

Shortly after this the Marshal was informed that the boys were laying for him and proposed to thump him. In making his rounds he came across Kelly and O'Hara on Main street near Fredendall's grocery store, and there arrested them. He pulled his revolver, and told them to march ahead of him down to the jail. They started off quite peaceably, except that there was some little back-talk as they went along, but nothing of a serious nature occurred until they had nearly reached Dr. Horne's residence, when Kelly drew from his coat sleeve a piece of gas-pipe and turned on the Marshal. O'Hara then started on the run. Russell called upon him to stop or he would shoot, but O'Hara kept going. The Marshal fired once, aiming low, in order to frighten him into a halt, but as he kept going, he fired again, taking good aim, the bullet hitting him in the back but not stopping his flight. In the meantime Kelly seeing that business was meant dropped the gas pipe and took to his heels. Russell was about to shoot at him, but Kelly was in such a position that a shot would have possibly struck the windows of a house on the opposite side of the street. In the confusion Kelly and O'Hara both made their escape.

Yesterday morning O'Hara applied to Dr. Palmer for treatment. The Doctor probed for the ball but was unable to find it. It entered the left shoulder near the shoulder blade, but striking the bone had glanced off, lodging elsewhere. The Doctor dressed the wound and thinks that with care the wound will not prove serious, unless inflammation sets in. He has not been arrested yet. The report that he had left town seems to have no foundation.

Last night the Marshal arrested Kelly at his home and lodged him in jail. The piece of gas-pipe which Kelly is said to have concealed in his sleeve, was picked up and will be presented probably in evidence, when the matter comes up before the Court. Kelly was arraigned this morning for resisting an officer, but an adjournment was taken until Saturday, the accused giving $200 bail.

A TROUBLESOME TONGUE.

This forenoon a team attached to a farmer's wagon and driven by William Bentz, of Milton, were going eastward on Milwaukee street when they became frightened at a passing threshing machine, and broke into a run. The driver held on well, notwithstanding the fact that the tongue pulled out of the neckyoke ring and went thumping along on the pavement, while the wagon kept running onto the heels of the horses. It was a lively runaway. On reaching the bridge the tongue struck a plank and the concussion sent the driver into the air. He landed in the wagon, and in a second was holding onto the reins again, and finally succeeded in bringing the team to a standstill at M. C. Smith & Son's corner, where the pole struck and was broken. No other damage was done.

ASSAULTING A WIDOW.

Last Friday night Mrs. Norton, a widow lady living in the Fifth ward, was disturbed in her slumbers by some one climbing into the window of her bedroom. She awoke and shrieked, and was soon conscious that it was Patsy Griffin, who was thus entering her domicile. Patsy was on a bender, and declared his desire to get lodgings for the night. The woman protested so strenuously that he crawled out again and left. Saturday afternoon she got a warrant for his arrest for assault, and that night he was lodged in jail. He appeared this morning before Justice Prichard and pleaded guilty to the charge, whereupon he was fined $5.65 including costs. Patsy is a good hearted fellow, when sober, but whisky inspires in him all sorts of deviltry of which he is heartily ashamed when he gets into his right mind again. It is about time that he was taking a new brace-up.

AWAY FOR THIRTY-TWO YEARS

Yesterday during the session of the Congregational Sunday school a visitor was noticed sitting quietly observing the doings. On being approached and interviewed he informed his questioner that thirty-two years ago he was himself Superintendent of that school. The gentleman proved to be Mr. McCulloch, who was formerly a resident of this city, being engaged in the drug business. Over thirty years ago he sold out his store to Sanborn & Treat, the latter being Dr. Treat, who is now in Chicago, where Mr. McCulloch also makes his home now. During these many years Mr. McCulloch has never visited Janesville although he has passed through here several times by railroad. He was cordially received yesterday when he made himself known, and gave the Sunday school a very interesting talk in which he brought in some pleasing reminiscences of the long ago.

POSSESSED OF THE DEVIL.

There was a very large audience at the Baptist church last evening. The music was of more than ordinary interest. The Amphion Quartet consisting of Messrs. Alden, Ashley, Bennet and Dennis sang an opening piece. The members of the quartet are singers of more than ordinary musical merit and culture, and they sang well. Dr. C. T. Barnes, of Chicago, who was fortunately present, gave a solo, which presented his tenor voice to pleasing advantage. The sermon by the pastor Rev. Mr. Chapell gave an interesting and practical discourse, drawing from the life of Judas Iscariot some forcible truths concerning demonical possession. He cleared the way for his subject paper by showing that for every felt want of man there was somewhere in the world some supply to meet the demand. In man's physical make-up there was thirst, hunger, a desire to breathe, and there was in the world, drink, food and air to supply these demands. Not only so but there were two kind of supplies, good and bad. There was healthy food and unhealthy food, wholesome and unwholesome drink, pure air and foul gasses. In the intellectual part of man's make-up there were also certain demands for which there were also supplies to be found, of two kinds one bad and one good. There was healthy reading, pure thoughts, and there was the reverse. In the spiritual world the same truth was no less manifest. The desires of the soul could be supplied by drawing from the pure fountain of God's spirit, or by being filled with evil. The one produced soul-health and vigor, the other caused moral ill-health and death. The speaker believed in divine inspiration and evil inspiration. Men were sometimes now possessed of the devil. It did not always follow that they became mad, but with evil inspiration there was always more or less of moral insanity caused, and this bordered so closely on intellectual insanity that it had become somewhat easy in the courts to prove a criminal's insanity as an excuse for crime. People wondered how Judas sold his Master for the paltry sum of $17. It could not be explained save on the ground that Satan possessed him to a certain degree, and that he led him to do thus foolishly. It was so to-day. Men inspired by evil commit foolish crimes in which detection is sure. Satan robs a man of the use of reason, and as Judas went and hung himself, so does Satan push other lives from one sin to another until physical and moral death results. The speaker warned his hearers to beware of the specious forms in which this evil inspiration presented itself, and urged them to seek the true inspiration which comes from God, and which leadeth upward.

GENERAL EFFECTS OF

FELLOWS' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

"It is Perfectly Safe, and the Taste Pleasant."

THE first apparent effect is to increase the appetite. It assists digestion, and causes the food to assimilate properly—thus the system is nourished. It also, by its tonic action on the digestive organs, induces more copious and regular evacuations. Its effect on the mucous membrane is such that easy expectoration is produced; not only are the air passages easily voided of the secretion already deposited, but its collection is carried on in a healthy manner, while the formation of tubercle is retarded. The rapidity with which patients take on flesh while under the influence of the Syrup, of itself indicates that no other preparation can be better adapted to help and nourish the constitution, and hence be more effacious in all depression of spirits, shaking or trembling of the hands or body, cough, shortness of breath, or consumptive habit. The nerves and muscles become strengthened and the blood purified.

FELLOWS'

Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites

Speedily and permanently cures Congestion of the Lungs, Bronchitis, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Shortness of Breath, Palpitation of the Heart, Trembling of the Hands and Limbs, Physical and Mental Depression, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Energy, Loss of Memory. It will rapidly improve the weakened functions and organs of the body, which depend for health upon voluntary, semi-voluntary and involuntary nervous action. It acts with vigor, gentleness, and subtilety owing to the exquisite harmony of its ingredients, akin to pure blood itself. Its taste is pleasant, and its effects permanent.
